

Getting the Reps with: WNBA MVP Nneka Ogwumike

Leadership Lifestyle

Key Takeaways

- Approachability is important to great leadership. People need to feel comfortable speaking to you.
- Leadership comes in many shapes and sizes, and just because you're not the captain or the one deemed to be the leader doesn't mean you can't lead.
- Great leaders know when they don't know. They try to ask for help or find the resources to point them in the right direction.
- Great leaders activate other people's leadership by understanding others' strengths and providing space for individuals to express those things that they are good at.

Things to Think About

- How comfortable do you think people are approaching you? How do you respond when they do?
- What is one thing that you think someone else on your team or in your class does well?

Ways to Practice

- The next time someone asks you a question you don't know the answer to, figure out what resources you need to find the answer.
- Come up with one way you can support someone else in what they are good at.

