

Getting the Reps with: NBA Legend Grant Hill

Sport Connects

Key Takeaways

- Sport can play an incredible role in bringing people together and healing.
- Events like sports can bring all different types of people into the same space and give them a common interest or goal, like their team winning.
- Sometimes the place to start in order to bridge divides is just to find something you have in common.

Things to Think About

- Have you been to a game or any kind of event with a lot of different types of people? What does that feel like?
- What are the types of things that divide us? What are the things, like sports, that can help unite us?

Ways to Practice

- Get a partner and find something you have in common that you might not have already known or expected.
- Come up with a list of things you might have in common even with someone who grew up on the other side of the world.

